

Italian Mid/Small Caps Monthly

2Q25 Results Set to Test Consensus Expectations

by Intermonte Research Team

talian Equity Market

- Performance (=/+). The Italian equity market (prices as at 16 June 2025) has posted a negative 1.7% performance in the last month and is up 16.4% YtD. The FTSE Italy Mid-Cap index (-0.3%) has performed 1.4% above the main index in the last month (-3.5% YtD on a relative basis), with the FTSE Italy Small Caps index (-0.1%) performing 1.6% better than the market but -6.4% on a relative basis YtD. Looking at mid/small cap performances across Europe, the MSCI Europe Small Caps index has grown 0.8% in the last month, performing slightly better than Italian mid small caps.
- Estimates (=). Since the beginning of 2025, we have reduced our 2025/2026 EPS estimates by -5.9%/-5.4%; notably, estimate revisions in the last month have been almost negligible for large caps (-0.1%/-0.2% on 2025/2026 EPS). Focusing on our mid/small cap coverage, in the last month we have left our 2025 EPS unchanged, while we have raised 2026 EPS by +0.4%. This is a consequence of the limited corporate newsflow in the last month and hence of the small number of new reports published.
- Valuations (=). If we compare performance since the beginning of the year to the change in FY25 estimates over the same period, we see that FTSE MIB stocks have recorded a 22.9% rerating (+24.8% one month ago); mid-caps have re-rated by 16.8%, while small caps have rerated by 15.0%. On a P/E basis, our panel is trading at a 18% premium to large caps, slightly below the historical average premium (20%) and in line with the level one month ago (18%).
- Liquidity (+). Looking at official Italian index trends, we note that liquidity for large caps in the last month (measured by multiplying average volumes by average prices in a specific period) is 12.2% higher than in the corresponding period one year ago and is up 34.1% YtD. The picture is also improving for mid-caps, but is weaker for small caps: specifically, since 1/1/25, liquidity is up 17.0% YoY for mid-caps while down 1.1% for small caps, although the latter have shown an improving trend in the last month.
- Investment strategy. The brutal market movements in the last three months were highly related to trade and geopolitics. At the same time, we noted that the messages arising from 1Q results were somewhat reassuring about the resilience of earnings for most companies, despite the great uncertainty that will hopefully subside as trade negotiation deadlines approach. This complex macro backdrop leaves equity markets highly sensitive to policy signals, with potential upside for defensive, energy, and inflation-hedged sectors. Within our coverage, investors are assessing how the increase in macroeconomic uncertainty observed since April—particularly around tariffs, energy prices, and ForEx volatility—could impact 2Q25 earnings, as they await results to be released between July and September. The summer months are traditionally difficult to predict for stock markets. We think Italian mid-cap equities remain attractive, but we recommend a selective approach, focusing on quality stocks that lead their sectors, with valuations justified by realistic growth prospects or strong cash generation. During the last month, we have seen some placements of quality names which were well received by investors, confirming that interest is high for solid equity stories despite strong performance. Finally, the National Strategic Fund, expected to launch by year-end with an initial commitment of €0.7-1.0 billion (49% from the NSF and 51% from private investors), should provide a positive catalyst for the sector. Fund managers will have full discretion over allocations on condition that at least 70% of capital is invested in listed companies outside the FTSE MIB index, excluding financial stocks.

Liquidity

Liquidity up in the last month

Looking at official Italian index trends, we note that liquidity for large caps in the last month (measured by multiplying average volumes by average prices in a specific period) is 12.2% higher than in the corresponding period one year ago and is up 34.1% YtD. The picture is also improving for mid-caps, but is weaker for small caps: specifically, since 1/1/25, liquidity is up 17.0% YoY for mid-caps while down 1.1% for small caps, although the latter have shown an improving trend in the last month.

GUIDE TO FUNDAMENTAL RESEARCH

The main methods used to evaluate financial instruments and set a target price for 12 months after the investment recommendation are as follows:

- Discounted cash flow (DCF) model or similar methods such as a dividend discount model (DDM)
- Comparison with market peers, using the most appropriate methods for the individual company analysed: among the main ratios used for industrial sectors are price/ earnings (P/E), EV/EBITDA, EV/EBIT, price /sales
- Return on capital and multiples of adjusted net book value are the main methods used for banking sector stocks, while for insurance sector stocks return on allocated capital and multiples on net book value and embedded portfolio value are used
- · For the utilities sector comparisons are made between expected returns and the return on the regulatory asset base (RAB)

Some of the parameters used in evaluations, such as the risk-free rate and risk premium, are the same for all companies covered, and are updated to reflect market conditions. Currently a risk-free rate of 4.0% and a risk premium of 5.5% are being used.

Frequency of research: quarterly.

Reports on all companies listed on the FTSEMIB40 Index, most of those on the MIDEX Index and the main small caps (regular coverage) are published at least once per quarter to comment on results and important newsflow.

A draft copy of each report may be sent to the subject company for its information (without target price and/or recommendations), but unless expressly stated in the text of the report, no changes are made before it is published.
